CESL does not provide services to retail clients. If you are categorised as a retail client under Applicable Law, you must contact the Compliance Officer of CESL and request a categorisation as a professional client. In such case, CESL will carry out an assessment in accordance with Applicable Law to assess whether you can be re-categorised as a professional client.

4 Our Capacity and Our Dealings With You

- (a) Except where a Client provides a specific instruction to CESL via an Order as to the capacity in which CESL is to execute that Order, CESL shall, in its sole discretion, determine whether to execute an Order received from a Client as principal or agent, or partly as principal and partly as agent.
- (b) Where CESL acts as a systematic internaliser, as defined by Applicable Law, in respect of any financial instrument and is required by Applicable Law to make public or provide quotes in respect of any financial instrument, the Client acknowledges and agrees that CESL may to the extent permitted by Applicable Law: (i) update any such quotes at any time; (ii) withdraw such quotes in exceptional market conditions; (iii) decide the size or sizes of such quotes; (iv) execute Orders received by a Client at a better price than that set out in quotes provided by CESL, provided that the improved price falls within a public range close to market conditions; (v) execute Orders at a different price to those quoted to the Client in respect of Transactions where execution in several securities is part of one Transaction or in respect of Orders that are subject to conditions other than the current market price; (vi) where CESL provides only one quote in respect of a financial instrument or where CESL’s highest quote in respect of that financial instrument is lower than the standard market size for that financial instrument and CESL receives an Order from a Client that is bigger than the quoted size but lower than the standard market size for that financial instrument, CESL may, in its sole discretion, decide to execute that part of the Order which exceeds the quoted size, either at the quoted price or at a different price in accordance with (iv) and (v) above; (vii) where CESL provides quotes in different sizes for the same financial instrument and a Client submits an Order between those sizes, CESL may determine the relevant quoted price against which that Order will be executed; (viii) determine in its sole discretion which Clients it wishes to give access to quotes; and (ix) limited the total number of Transactions that CESL undertakes with a Client in respect of its published quoted prices and limit the total number of Transactions that CESL enters into with different Clients at the same time.
- (c) CESL may, in its sole discretion, utilise a Smart Router to route the Order to an alternate Execution Venue, unless the Client has opted out of the Smart Router. The Smart Router is available only with respect to certain securities and markets. The Client will be required to provide any information that CESL requests in order to provide the Services. Client understands and agrees that CESL may execute such transactions by routing Orders for handling and/or execution by one or more third parties, including CESL’s Affiliated Companies, and that such third parties may effect such Transactions as agent or on a principal basis. Such third parties may handle and/or execute Orders at a price inclusive of their mark-up/down, commission equivalent or spread. In connection with such executions by third parties, the Client understands that the commission or commission equivalent charged by CESL and reported to the Client via a trade confirmation shall be in addition to any such third-party mark-up/down, commission equivalent or spread (i.e. net price) included in the price for the Transaction.
- (d) Transactions executed by CESL may be settled by Cowen and Co under the terms of the Clearing Agreement. - (e) The Client acknowledges that the hedging activity of CESL and its Affiliated Companies could impact the market price of the relevant security and/or the price of the execution received by Client.

5 The Client's Payment and Settlement Obligations for the Services

(a) The Client agrees to pay for the Services provided by CESL or its Affiliated Companies. The amounts that the Client shall pay for the Services shall be determined in accordance with CESL's prevailing rates. The Client will receive information about applicable rates when it becomes a client of CESL. CESL may also notify the Client in writing about changes to the applicable rates. The amount that the Client shall pay for the Services shall be collected from the Client by an Affiliate Company, acting on behalf of CESL, and the sum will be paid to CESL by an Affiliate Company at the time of settlement of the relevant Transaction. The Client agrees that the Affiliate Company shall be entitled to retain a proportion of the amount received from the Client which has been agreed between CESL and the Affiliate Company.

(b) It is the Client's intention and obligation to deliver securities to cover all sales and remit funds to pay for all purchases upon demand and, but in no event beyond the time period set forth in Applicable Law. The Client shall be fully and unconditionally liable for the timely settlement of each and every Transaction effected with or through CESL. Timely settlement means settlement of any outstanding amounts relating to interest or dividend payment; corporate action; foreign exchange Transaction charges and fees; brokerage charges; give-up fees; commissions; sums equivalent to commission; Transaction related taxes or stamp duties; service fees charged by CESL or third parties; or any other fees relating to execution or clearing of Orders and Transactions. All such amounts shall be collected at the time of settlement of the relevant Transaction.

The Client agrees to accept and pay for delivery of securities in an amount equal to the total amount owed to CESL in connection with a Transaction. The Client shall be liable to CESL for any deficiency remaining in any of Client's Account(s) in the event of the liquidation thereof, in whole or in part, by the Client or CESL. The Client agrees to reimburse CESL for all expenses, including reasonable attorneys' fees, incurred by or on behalf of CESL to enforce the Client's obligations as a result of any Order or foreign exchange Transaction. The Client agrees that if the Client directs CESL to execute a short sale of securities, or if the Client fails to deliver to CESL securities that CESL has sold at the Client's direction, the Client authorises CESL to borrow the securities necessary to make delivery and the Client agrees to be responsible for any costs incurred by CESL. The Client understands that the Applicable Law may require CESL and the Affiliated Companies to take certain actions or impose certain restrictions on the Client if the Client does not timely settle its Transactions.

(c) Unless otherwise agreed, all monies and securities for settlement shall be delivered directly to CESL's agent, or the agent of an Affiliate Company for the market in which the Client's Transaction is executed. This agent acts on the Affiliated Companies' behalf to settle Transactions in most cases on a delivery versus payment or receipt versus payment basis. Following settlement, all monies and securities are delivered to the Client's custodian.

Unless otherwise agreed, settlement of all transactions effected with or for the Client must be made in accordance with the usual terms for settlement of the appropriate Exchange, market or Clearing System where applicable.

6 General Agreements in relation to Order Handling and Transactions

The Parties further agree that:

(a) The Client will be responsible (i) for the accurate submission of all Orders and instructions to CESL, and (ii) to ensure that any Orders or other instructions given by it, any of its employees or agents shall have been properly authorised. CESL is authorised to comply with and rely upon any Orders, instructions or communications which CESL believes have been sent or given by an authorised representative of Client. CESL shall be entitled to rely on its understanding of any Order, instruction or communication (whether given or received by CESL), notwithstanding any discrepancy between its understanding and any subsequent confirming document or communication.

(b) Except as otherwise agreed to by the Parties in writing, the Client agrees and directs that all open orders submitted to CESL for execution will not be adjusted by CESL in any manner to account for corporate actions of any kind including, without limitation stock splits, dividends or distributions, during the entire period that CESL holds such Open Orders.

(c) In the event that the Client disputes or denies knowledge of any Order or Transaction, CESL shall be authorised, but not required, to liquidate or otherwise offset the disputed position. The Client will promptly notify CESL of any Transaction that the Client or a customer of the Client believes to be in error.

Subject to Section 4(b), CESL, in its sole discretion, may reject, in whole or in part, any Order from the Client and shall not be required to notify the Client of the reason why. CESL will not accept any Orders sent to a mobile device in accordance with Applicable Law.

(d) Where CESL provides prices to Clients, such prices will either be based on the underlying market price (where CESL acts as agent) or based on CESL's own prices (where CESL acts as principal), which will incorporate CESL's spread. Where CESL acts as principal, and subject at all times to Section 4(b), it shall have sole discretion to determine the prices and sizes it is willing to transact in with Clients.

(e) CESL, in its sole discretion and without notice, may impose trading limits on the Client and generally restrict trading with or for the Client.

(f) The Client shall provide CESL with financial and other information regarding the Client as CESL in its sole discretion may request. The Client shall notify CESL immediately if the financial condition of the Client changes adversely from that shown in the most recent financial information provided to CESL or if there is any adverse change in Client's operations. The Client authorises CESL to investigate and to make and obtain reports concerning the Client's credit standing, financial position and business conduct. The Client authorises CESL to rely on any documentation including, without limitation, traders' authorisations, financial statements, letters of representation, and indemnities, that the Client has provided to CESL or its Affiliate Company or employee of CESL.

(g) CESL shall have the right, but not the obligation, to set off any amounts owed by CESL or its Affiliate Company to the Client or the Client's associates under any other agreement and/or Transaction against any amounts owed by the Client to CESL under this Agreement.

(h) The Client agrees that all Orders and Transactions shall be subject to CESL's policies and procedures which are in effect from time to time.

(i) The Client agrees that CESL may transmit to the Client information concerning Client's Orders and Transactions through non-encrypted electronic mail and other electronic means. The Client understands and accepts the risks involved and assumes responsibility for such electronic transmission.

(j) Except for Communications made pursuant to Section 25(f), the Client specifically agrees to receive and/or obtain any and all CESL-related Communications. Communications can be made via email, hyperlinks or postings on CESL's website. The Client accepts that Communications provided via email, hyperlinks or postings on CESL's website constitute reasonable and proper notice for the purpose of Applicable Law. The Client agrees that such electronic form satisfies any requirement that the communications must be provided to Client in writing.

(k) CESL may, at the Client's request, permit the Client to communicate directly with CESL's Affiliated Companies in connection with the provision of Services hereunder. The Client agrees that the matters set forth in this Section 6 shall apply to any communication and dealing with CESL's Affiliate Company.

(l) Unless otherwise agreed, any Order received by CESL from the Client shall be for immediate execution. Where the Order is not immediately executed in full, CESL may in its absolute discretion execute the Order over such period as CESL may consider is necessary to obtain the best possible result for the Client and in such circumstances may report to the Client an average price for the series of Transactions instead of the price at which each individual Transaction was executed. The Client will be bound by all executions (partial or otherwise) of Orders CESL receives from the Client.

(m) Under its Order Execution Policy, CESL may execute Orders outside of a Regulated Market, MTF or OTF. The Client expressly consents to CESL executing the Client's Orders outside of a regulated market, MTF or OTF. The Client in providing such express consent agrees that, whenever the Client gives instructions and places an Order, CESL shall be entitled in its discretion to select the Execution Venue for executing the Order.

(n) Certain types of securities, like American Depositary Receipts or American Depositary Shares (collectively, "ADRs") and Exchange Traded Funds ("ETFs"), are comprised of one or more underlying securities. Those underlying securities often are traded in various markets, and mechanisms exist to exchange them for the ADRs or ETFs and vice versa. The following information applies to ADRs and ETFs:

(i) Orders for ADRs and/or ordinary shares are subject to this Agreement, as well as the ADR Direct and Reverse ADR Client Terms and Conditions, which are hereby incorporated by reference. A copy of this Agreement and the ADR Direct® and Reverse ADR Client Terms and Conditions are available at <https://www.cowen.com/regulatory-disclosures/>. With respect to Orders for ETFs, the Client agrees that when CESL believes it is advantageous to the Client and consistent with best execution principles, CESL through Cowen and Co will effect the trade by buying or selling the underlying securities composing the ETF and then converting such securities to, or redeeming such securities, for the ETF shares, as opposed to buying or selling the ETF shares directly. The Client agrees to execute ETF Orders in this manner notwithstanding that it may result in the Client paying certain additional fees to Cowen and Co or other Affiliated Companies for, among other things, processing the conversions or redemptions, pre-releasing shares, borrowing or lending securities or cash, foreign exchange, taxes, clearing and settlement fees, and other costs. The Client acknowledges that an Affiliate Company may earn revenue on some or all of these additional fees, including spreads on securities Transactions. The Client agrees that it will not hold 80% or more of the outstanding ETF shares of the issuing fund and will not treat such purchase as eligible for tax-free treatment under Section 351 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended.

(o) Cowen and Co advertises executed trade volumes from across all of its businesses via third-party systems such as Bloomberg and Autex, each of which disseminates this information to the marketplace. Cowen and Co will only advertise the symbol and size for Transactions and only after the trade(s) have been reported to an applicable Self-Regulatory Organisation trade reporting facility, as required by Applicable Law. The Client can opt-out of having its volume(s) advertised in this manner by providing notice to CESL or Cowen and Co in accordance with this Agreement.

(p) Under Applicable Law, where CESL handle a limit order for shares admitted to trading on a regulated market in Europe which is not immediately executed under prevailing market conditions, CESL must have the Client's express instructions not to make that order immediately public. The Client hereby provides CESL with its consent not to immediately make its orders public.

(q) CESL has, at all times, the right exercisable in its sole discretion to refuse to accept Orders, or execute or clear Transactions for the Client's Accounts, and to refuse to conduct business with the Client, which it may exercise where, for example and without limitation, it has not received the necessary information from the Client.

7 Marking of Orders and "Restricted" Securities

The Client shall place any short sale Order or any long sale Order in an appropriate Account. The Client hereby authorises CESL to mark any such Order as "short" or "long" in accordance with the Client's designation and as appropriate in the particular market, in accordance with Applicable Law. The Client represents and warrants that it owns any securities sold long and has located or borrowed any securities sold short. The Client agrees that it shall not mark any sale Order "long" unless the Client owns, and is net long, the security being sold and will deliver the security in good deliverable form by settlement date. The Client agrees that it shall mark all other sale Orders "short," provided that the Applicable Law requires Orders be marked accordingly. Unless otherwise agreed, the Client's failure to deliver the security in good deliverable form prior to settlement date will result in a buy-in of the security, meaning that CESL will purchase the securities from a third party and deliver those securities on the Client's behalf. The Client will be solely responsible for all costs associated with such buy-in.

(a) The Client agrees that any Order or Transaction in securities which are deemed to be "restricted" under Applicable Law shall be effected only in accordance with the policies and requirements prescribed from time to time by CESL. Such policies and requirements may require, for instance, execution of appropriate documentation and, in certain circumstances, receipt of opinion of counsel.

(b) The Client shall adhere to any and all limitations imposed on its Transactions, as communicated by CESL from time to time. Such limitations may concern, among other things: (i) the principal amount and the number of shares per Order or Transaction for any security, all securities or foreign exchange; (ii) the notional amount or the number of shares for which Orders and Transactions may be submitted on any given business day for any security or for all securities; (iii) the notional amount involved per Order or Transaction for any security or for all securities; or (iv) the notional amount involved for all Orders and Transactions which may be submitted on any given business day for any security or for all securities.

8 Best Execution, Aggregation of Orders and Programme Trades

(a) CESL will comply with its Order Execution Policy and, in particular, any applicable obligations regarding Order Execution Policy under the Applicable Law. CESL's Order Execution Policy is provided to Clients prior to placing orders with CESL and is re-distributed from time to time. CESL will notify you of any material changes to its Order Execution Policy. Copies of the Order Execution Policy can be obtained by contacting by the Compliance Officer of CESL. The Order Execution Policy can also be found on Cowen Inc.'s website at <https://www.cowen.com/regulatory-disclosures/>.

(b) The Client's Orders will be executed in accordance with CESL's Order Execution Policy as amended from time to time. By agreeing to be bound by the terms of this Agreement, the Client confirms it has read, agrees and consents to CESL executing Orders in accordance with CESL's Order Execution Policy. CESL will notify the Client of any material changes to the Order Execution Policy but it is the Client's responsibility to check for any other changes to CESL's Order Execution Policy as distributed from time to time by CESL to its Clients. The Client is deemed to agree and consent to the Order Execution Policy as in effect from time to time each time the Client gives instructions and places an Order.

(c) Where CESL or any Affiliate Company executes a programme trade the Client agrees that CESL will not be obliged to notify the Client whether such Affiliate Company acts as principal or agent.

(d) The Client agrees that it will be responsible for any profit and loss due to fluctuations in exchange rates arising from Transactions which are effected in a foreign currency. Furthermore, the Client agrees that CESL or any Affiliate Company may use such exchange rate as conclusively determined by CESL or such Affiliate Company when executing such Transactions.

(e) The Client agrees that CESL has the right to aggregate one of the Client's Orders with Orders from other customers, if such aggregation of Orders is unlikely to disadvantage the Client and as long as such aggregation is permitted by Applicable Law. Nevertheless, the Client understands that such aggregation could result in the Client being disadvantaged. CESL's policy is to aggregate the Client's Orders when we believe it will result in a favourable execution result for the Client. In either case, including when comparable Orders are partially executed, CESL allocates the fills in an order of priority based on time of receipt of the order. CESL will undertake to ensure that the fair treatment of the Client is central to all allocation decisions.

9 Post-Trade Reporting

(a) Where CESL decides that it will achieve the best result for the Client's order by executing it in an alternative trading system, CESL may submit trade reports regarding such Transactions to Approved Publication Arrangements ("APAs"). As applicable, CESL will only make public such information when CESL is acting as the seller, unless the buyer is acting as a systematic internaliser, in which case CESL will not make public such information.

(b) CESL has the sole discretion to determine where any trade should be trade reported for post-trade transparency purposes.

(c) CESL may agree to allow APAs to use certain data provided by CESL for the purposes of the Client's trade reporting obligations; however, if CESL does so, the Client undertakes, represents and warrants that the Client is and remains responsible and liable for the submission and accuracy of the data or related reports (including promptly checking and verifying such data, where applicable) and overall compliance with the Client's trade reporting obligations. CESL gives no representations or warranties as to the accuracy of such data and neither CESL nor any of CESL's Affiliated Companies shall be liable for any Losses arising in connection with the accuracy of such data or the failure of, or delays caused by any system, interface or other internal or external technology used for capturing transmission or receipt of such data or the APA services or any act or omission of such APA or any third party. CESL reserves the right to discontinue the provision of such data at any time and for any reason.

10 Transaction Reporting

(a) To enable CESL to comply with transaction reporting obligations under Applicable Law, the Client agrees to promptly deliver to CESL any information that CESL may from time to time request to enable CESL to complete and submit transaction reports to the FCA. The Client agrees that CESL may provide information about the Client or, where applicable, a principal, and Transactions executed with or for the Client or, where applicable, a principal, to competent authorities in the course of submitting transaction reports and to it making public relevant details of quotes provided to you and Transactions executed for you in accordance with Applicable Law.

(b) The Client acknowledges that the Client may be separately required to submit transaction reports regarding certain Transactions. CESL will not submit transaction reports to the FCA on behalf of the Client, and CESL will not reference the Client's underlying clients.

(c) The Client will be solely responsible for assessing and determining whether the Client is subject to any transaction reporting obligations in relation to any Transaction that is executed by or through CESL, and the Client will be solely responsible for complying with any such transaction reporting obligations that the Client is subject to.

(d) The Client acknowledges that the disclosures made in the context of CESL's trade or transaction reporting may be made to recipients in a jurisdiction other than CESL's or the Client's, (i) to the extent that applicable non-disclosure, confidentiality, bank secrecy, or other law imposes non-disclosure requirements on Transaction and similar information required or permitted to be disclosed as contemplated herein but permits a Party to waive such requirements by consent, the consent and acknowledgements provided herein shall be your consent for purposes of such law; and (ii) any agreement between CESL and the Client to maintain confidentiality of information contained in this Agreement or in any non-disclosure, confidentiality or other agreement shall continue to apply to the extent that such agreement is not inconsistent with the disclosure of information in connection with this provision; and (iii) nothing herein is intended to limit the scope of any other consent to disclosure separately given by each Party to the other Party.

11 Trade Confirmations

(a) Unless otherwise agreed, CESL will promptly provide the Client with confirmations of any Transactions executed for Client in accordance with Applicable Law. The Client agrees that the commission set out in any confirmation of Transaction should combine the amounts of commission receivable by each of CESL and Affiliate Company in accordance with Section 5(a). CESL will send a confirmation in respect of each transaction executed through CESL or an Affiliate Company to the Client no later than one business day following the execution of that Transaction.

(b) The Client agrees that CESL may provide confirmations of Transactions to the Client by electronic means, unless otherwise has been agreed. The Client agrees that it is responsible for regularly confirming the correctness of electronic confirmations. Confirmations of Transactions shall be conclusive and binding on the Client unless there is clear evidence in telephone records of manifest error. Confirmations shall be deemed to be accepted unless the Client objects within one Business Day of receipt.

(c) CESL shall, on the Client's request, supply information about the status of an Order or Transaction under Applicable Law.

12 Information on Costs and Charges

(a) CESL will, in good time before the provision of any Services, provide the Client with appropriate information in relation to the costs and charges relating to the Services CESL may provide to the Client and any third-party payments CESL may receive in connection with the Services CESL may provide to the Client.

(b) By way of the Client's categorisation as a professional client or an eligible counterparty (as applicable), the Client agrees to being provided more limited information on costs and charges than would otherwise be required under Applicable Law.

(c) Information on costs and charges with respect to Services will be provided to Client in writing. Client agrees that CESL may provide it with information on costs and charges via e-mail. Clients should note that there are significant risks inherent in investing in certain financial instruments and in certain markets. Investment in derivatives, futures, options and warrants may expose clients to risks which are different to those investors might expect when they invest in equities. Similarly, investment in shares issued by issuers in emerging markets (by which we mean those that have an underdeveloped infrastructure or which are less economically or politically stable as markets in developed countries) involves risks not typically associated with equities investment in well developed markets. Investment in any of the foregoing kinds of financial instruments is generally appropriate for sophisticated investors who understand and are able to bear the risks involved. Among such risks, is the risk of losing the entire value of an investment or (in the case of certain derivative and other transactions) the risk of being exposed to liability over and above the initial investment. Below are some specific risks and considerations for investors in relation to financial instruments of the type referred to above.

Products and Investments

- Shares and other types of equity instruments

A risk with an equity investment is that the company must both grow in value and, if it elects to pay dividends to its shareholders, make adequate dividend payments, or the share price may fall. If the share price falls, the company, if listed or traded on-exchange, may then find it difficult to raise further capital to finance the business, and the company's performance may deteriorate vis à vis its competitors, leading to further reductions in the share price. Ultimately the company may become vulnerable to a takeover or may fail.

Shares have exposure to all the major risk types referred to in section 2 (Generic risk types) below. In addition, there is a risk that there could be volatility or problems in the sector that the company is in. If the company is private, i.e. not listed or traded on an exchange, or is listed but only traded infrequently, there may also be liquidity risk, whereby shares could become very difficult to dispose of.

- Ordinary shares

Ordinary shares are issued by limited liability companies as the primary means of raising risk capital. The issuer has no obligation to repay the original cost of the share, or the capital, to the shareholder until the issuer is wound up (in other words, the issuer company ceases to exist). In return for the capital investment in the share, the issuer may make discretionary dividend payments to shareholders, which could take the form of cash or additional shares. Ordinary shares usually carry a right to vote at general meetings of the issuer.

There is no guaranteed return on an investment in ordinary shares for the reasons set out above, and in a liquidation of the issuer, ordinary shareholders are amongst the last with a right to repayment of capital and any surplus funds of the issuer, which could lead to a loss of a substantial proportion, or all, of the original investment.

- Preference shares

Unlike ordinary shares, preference shares give shareholders the right to a fixed dividend the calculation of which is not based on the success of the issuer company. They therefore tend to be a less risky form of investment than ordinary shares.

Preference shares do not usually give shareholders the right to vote at general meetings of the issuer, but shareholders will have a greater preference to any surplus funds of the issuer than ordinary shareholders, should the issuer go into liquidation. There is still a risk that you may lose all or part of your capital.

- Depositary Receipts

Depositary Receipts (ADRs, GDRs, etc.) are negotiable certificates, typically issued by a bank, which represent a specific number of shares in a company, traded on a stock exchange which is local or overseas to the issuer of the receipt. They may facilitate investment in the companies due to the widespread availability of price information, lower transaction costs and timely dividend distributions. The risks involved relate both to the underlying share and to the bank issuing the receipt. In addition, there are important differences between the rights of holders of ADRs and GDRs, (together, "Depositary Receipts") and the rights of holders of the shares of the underlying share issuer represented by such Depositary Receipts. The relevant deposit agreement for the Depositary Receipt sets out the rights and responsibilities of the depositary (being the issuer of the Depositary Receipt), the underlying share issuer and holders of the Depositary Receipt which may be different from the rights of holders of the underlying shares. For example, the underlying share issuer may make distributions in respect of its underlying shares that are not passed on to the holders of its Depositary Receipts. Any such differences between the rights of holders of the Depositary Receipts and holders of the underlying shares of the underlying share issuer may be significant and may materially and adversely affect the value of the relevant instruments. Depositary Receipts representing underlying shares in a foreign jurisdiction (in particular an emerging market jurisdiction) also involve risks associated with the securities markets in such jurisdictions.

- Penny shares

There is an extra risk of losing money when shares are bought in some smaller companies, including penny shares. There is a big difference between the buying price and the selling price of these shares. If they have to be sold immediately, you may get back much less than you paid for them. The price may change quickly, and it may go down as well as up.

Generic Risk Types

- General

The price or value of an investment will depend on fluctuations in the financial markets outside of anyone's control. Past performance is no indicator of future performance.

The nature and extent of investment risks varies between countries and from investment to investment. These investment risks will vary with, amongst other things, the type of investment being made, including how the financial products have been created or their terms drafted, the needs and objectives of particular investors, the manner in which a particular investment is made or offered, sold or traded, the location or domicile of the issuer, the diversification or concentration in a portfolio (e.g. the amount invested in any one currency, security, country or issuer), the complexity of the transaction and the use of leverage.

The risk types set out below could have an impact on each type of investment:

- i. Liquidity

The liquidity of an instrument is directly affected by the supply and demand for that instrument and also indirectly by other factors, including market disruptions (for example a disruption on the relevant exchange) or infrastructure issues, such as a lack of sophistication or disruption in the securities settlement process. Under certain trading conditions it may be difficult or impossible to liquidate or acquire a position. This may occur, for example, at times of rapid price movement if the price rises or falls to such an extent that under the rules of the relevant exchange trading is suspended or restricted. Placing a stop-loss order will not necessarily limit your losses to intended amounts, but market conditions may make it impossible to execute such an order at the stipulated price. In addition, unless the contract terms so provide, a party may not have to accept early termination of a contract or buy back or redeem the relevant product and there may therefore be zero liquidity in the product. In other cases, early termination, realisation or redemption may result in you receiving substantially less than you paid for the product or, in some cases, nothing at all.

- ii. Credit risk

Credit risk is the risk of loss caused by borrowers, bond obligors, guarantors, or counterparties failing to fulfil their obligations or the risk of such parties' credit quality deteriorating. Exposure to the credit risk of one or more reference entities is particularly relevant to any credit linked product such as credit linked notes, and the potential losses which may be sustained, and the frequency and likelihood of such losses occurring, when investing in credit links products may be substantially greater than when investing in an obligation of the reference entity itself.

- iii. Market risk

General

The price of investments goes up and down depending on market supply and demand, investor perception and the prices of any underlying or allied investments or, indeed, sector, political and economic factors. These can be totally unpredictable.

Overseas markets

Any overseas investment or investment with an overseas element can be subject to the risks of overseas markets which may involve different risks from those of the home market of the investor. In some cases the risks will be greater. The potential for profit or loss from transactions on foreign markets or in overseas denominated contracts will be affected by fluctuations in overseas exchange rates.

Emerging Markets

Price volatility in emerging markets, in particular, can be extreme. Price discrepancies, low trading volumes and wide pricing spreads can be common and unpredictable movements in the market not uncommon. Additionally, as news about a country becomes available, the financial markets may react with dramatic upswings and/or downswings in prices during a very short period of time. Emerging markets generally lack the level of transparency, liquidity, efficiency, market infrastructure, legal certainty and regulation found in more developed markets. For example, these markets might not have regulations governing market or price manipulation and insider trading or other provisions designed to "level the playing field" with respect to the availability of information and the use or misuse thereof in such markets. They may also be affected by sector, economic and political risk. It may be difficult to employ certain risk and legal uncertainty management practices for emerging markets investments, such as forward currency exchange contracts or derivatives. The impact of the imposition or removal of foreign exchange controls at any time should be considered, as well as potential difficulties in repatriation of assets. The risks associated with nationalisation or expropriation of assets, the imposition of confiscatory or punitive taxation, restrictions on investments by foreigners in an emerging market, sanctions, war and revolution should also be considered, as well as potential difficulties in repatriation of assets. The risks associated with nationalisation or expropriation of assets, the imposition of confiscatory or punitive taxation, restrictions on investments by foreigners in an emerging market, sanctions, war and revolution should also be considered

iv. Clearing house protections/settlement risk

On many exchanges, the performance of a transaction may be “guaranteed” by the exchange or clearing house. However, this guarantee is usually in favour of the exchange or clearing house member and cannot be enforced by the client who may, therefore, be subject to the credit and insolvency risks of the firm through whom the transaction was executed. There is, typically, no clearing house for off-exchange OTC instruments which are not traded under the rules of an exchange (although unlisted transferable securities may be cleared through a clearing house).

Settlement risk is the risk that a counterparty does not deliver the security (or its value) in accordance with the agreed terms after the other counterparty has already fulfilled its part of the agreement to so deliver. Settlement risk increases where different legs of the transaction settle in different time zones or in different settlement systems where netting is not possible. This risk is particularly acute in foreign exchange transactions and currency swap transactions.

v. Insolvency

The insolvency or default of the firm with whom you are dealing, or of any brokers involved with your transaction, may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent or, indeed, investments not being returned to you. There is also insolvency risk in relation to the investment itself, for example of the company that issued a bond or of the counterparty to off-exchange derivatives (where the risk relates to the derivative itself and to any collateral or margin held by the counterparty).

vi. Currency risk

In respect of any foreign exchange transactions and transactions in derivatives and securities that are denominated in a currency other than that in which your account is denominated, a movement in exchange rates may have a favourable or an unfavourable effect on the gain or loss achieved on such transactions.

The weakening of a country’s currency relative to a benchmark currency or the currency of your portfolio will negatively affect the value of an investment denominated in that currency. Currency valuations are linked to a host of economic, social and political factors and can fluctuate greatly, even during intra-day trading. Some countries have foreign exchange controls which may include the suspension of the ability to exchange or transfer currency, or the devaluation of the currency. Hedging can increase or decrease the exposure to any one currency, but may not eliminate completely exposure to changing currency values.

vii. Interest rate risk

Interest rates can rise as well as fall. A risk with interest rates is that the relative value of a security, especially a bond, will worsen due to an interest rate increase. This could impact negatively on other products. There are additional interest rate related risks in relation to floating rate instruments and fixed rate instruments; interest income on floating rate instruments cannot be anticipated. Due to varying interest income, investors are not able to determine a definite yield of floating rate instruments at the time they purchase them, so that their return on investment cannot be compared with that of investments having longer fixed interest periods. If the terms and conditions of the relevant instruments provide for frequent interest payment dates, investors are exposed to the reinvestment risk if market interest rates decline. That is, investors may reinvest the interest income paid to them only at the relevant lower interest rates then prevailing.

Changes in market interest rates have a substantially stronger impact on the prices of zero coupon bonds than on the prices of ordinary bonds because the discounted issue prices are substantially below par. If market interest rates increase, zero coupon bonds can suffer higher price losses than other bonds having the same maturity and credit rating.

viii. Commodity risk

The prices of commodities may be volatile, and, for example, may fluctuate substantially if natural disasters or catastrophes, such as hurricanes, fires or earthquakes, affect the supply or production of such commodities. The prices of commodities may also fluctuate substantially if conflict or war affects the supply or production of such commodities. If any interest and/or the redemption amount payable in respect of any product are linked to the price of a commodity, any change in the price of such commodity may result in the reduction of the amount of interest and/or the redemption amount payable. The reduction in the amount payable on the redemption of an investment may result, in some cases, in you receiving a smaller sum on redemption of a product than the amount originally invested in such product.

ix. Regulatory/legal/structural risk

All investments could be exposed to regulatory, legal or structural risk.

Returns on all, and particularly new, investments are at risk from regulatory or legal actions and changes which can, amongst other issues, alter the profit potential of an investment. Legal changes could even have the effect that a previously acceptable investment becomes illegal. Changes to related issues such as tax may also occur and could have a large impact on profitability. Such risk is unpredictable and can depend on numerous political, economic and other factors. For this reason, this risk is greater in emerging markets but does apply everywhere. In emerging markets, there is generally less government supervision and regulation of business and industry practices, stock exchanges and over-the-counter markets.

The type of laws and regulations with which investors are familiar in the EEA may not exist in some places, and where they do, may be subject to inconsistent or arbitrary application or interpretation and may be changed with retroactive effect. Both the independence of judicial systems and their immunity from economic, political or nationalistic influences remain largely untested in many countries. Judges and courts in many countries are generally inexperienced in the areas of business and corporate law. Companies are exposed to the risk that legislatures will revise established law solely in response to economic or political pressure or popular discontent. There is no guarantee that an overseas investor would obtain a satisfactory remedy in local courts in case of a breach of local laws or regulations or a dispute over ownership of assets. An investor may also encounter difficulties in pursuing legal remedies or in obtaining and enforcing judgments in overseas courts.

In the case of many products, there will be no legal or beneficial interest in the obligations or securities of the underlying reference entity but rather an investor will have a contractual relationship with the counterparty only and its rights will therefore be limited to contractual remedies against the counterparty in accordance with the terms of the relevant product.

In all cases the legal terms and conditions of a product may contain provisions which could operate against your interests. For example, they may permit early redemption or termination at a time which is unfavourable to you, or they may give wide discretion to the issuer of securities to revise the terms applicable to securities. In other cases, there may be limits on the amounts in relation to which rights attaching to securities may be exercised and in the event that you hold too many (or too few) securities, your interests may be prejudiced and should scrutinise these carefully. In some cases, the exercise of rights by others may impact on your investment. For example, a product such as a bond or note may contain provisions for calling meetings of holders of those bonds or notes to consider matters affecting their interests generally (including yours) and may permit defined majorities to bind all holders, including holders who did not attend and vote at the relevant meeting and holders who voted in a manner contrary to the majority. Further, in some cases amendments may be made to the terms and conditions of bonds or notes without the consent of any of the holders in circumstances set out in general conditions attaching to such bonds or notes.

x. Operational risk

Operational risk, such as breakdowns or malfunctioning of essential systems and controls, including IT systems, can impact on all financial products. Business risk, especially the risk that the business is run incompetently or poorly could also have an adverse impact on shareholders of, or investors in, such business. Personnel and organisational changes can severely affect such risks and, in general, operational risk may not be apparent from outside the organisation.

Transaction and Service Risks

- Contingent Liability Investment Transactions

Contingent liability investment transactions, which are margined, may require you to make a series of payments apart from any initial payment or premium. If you trade in futures, contracts for differences or sell options, you may sustain a total loss of the margin you deposit to establish or maintain a position. If the market moves against you, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional margin at short notice to maintain the position. If you fail to do so within the time required, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be responsible for the resulting deficit. Even if a transaction is not margined, it may still carry an obligation to make further payments in certain circumstances over and above any amount paid when you entered the contract.

- Limited Liability Transactions

The extent of your loss on a limited liability transaction will be limited to an amount agreed by you before you enter into the transaction. The amount you can lose in limited liability transactions will be less than in other margined transactions, which have no predetermined loss limit. Nevertheless, even though the extent of loss will be subject to the agreed limit, you may sustain the loss in a relatively short time. Your loss may be limited, but the risk of sustaining a total loss equivalent to the amount agreed is substantial.

- Collateral

If you deposit collateral as security for transactions you enter into, the way in which it will be treated will vary according to the type of transaction and where it is traded. There could be significant differences in the treatment of your collateral, depending on whether you are trading on a recognised or designated investment exchange, with the rules of that exchange (and any associated clearing house) applying, or trading off-exchange. Collateral may lose its identity as your property once dealings on your behalf are undertaken, particularly where you transfer the title to such collateral and 'right to use' provisions apply. Even if your dealings should ultimately prove profitable, you may not get back the same assets which you deposited, and may have to accept payment in cash.

- Stabilisation

You may enter transactions in newly issued securities in respect of which we are the stabilisation manager and the price of which may have been influenced by measures taken to stabilise it. Stabilisation enables the market price of a security to be maintained artificially during the period when a new issue of securities is sold to the public. Stabilisation may affect not only the price of the new issue but also the price of other securities relating to it. The FCA allows stabilisation in order to help counter the fact that when a new issue comes onto the market for the first time, the price can sometimes drop for a time before buyers are found.

As long as the stabilisation manager follows FCA Rules, it is entitled to buy back the securities that were previously sold to investors or allotted to institutions which have decided not to keep them. The effect of this may be to keep the price at a higher level than it would otherwise be during the period of stabilisation.

The stabilisation rules:

- a) limit the period when a stabilisation manager may stabilise a new issue;
- b) fix the price at which the issue may be stabilised (in the case of shares and warrants, but not bonds); and
- c) require disclosure of the fact that a stabilisation manager may be stabilising, but not that it is actually doing so.

The fact that a new issue, or a related security, is being stabilised should not be taken as any indication of the level of interest from investors, or of the price at which they are prepared to buy the securities.

Conflicts of Interest

CESL and its Affiliated Companies provide services and maintain positions in a wide range of products, whether as a result of trading activities requested by clients or counterparties, or as part of a hedging strategy in reasonable expectation of near-term demand. CESL's Affiliated Companies may also have an interest or arrangement that is material to a transaction effected with or for the Client. These business activities have the potential to result in CESL or its Affiliated Companies having an interest that diverges from that of the Client.

CESL maintains and operates effective organisational and administrative arrangements and is committed to taking all reasonable steps to identify, monitor and manage conflicts of interest. CESL has arrangements in place to:

- identify circumstances which may give rise to conflicts of interest with the potential to result in material risk of damage to customers' interests;
- establish appropriate mechanisms and systems to mitigate and manage those conflicts; and
- maintain systems designed to prevent identified conflicts of interest from resulting in damage to customers' interests.

The Client accepts that CESL and its Affiliated Companies may have interests which are material in relation to any Order or Transaction, and which give rise, or have the potential to give rise, to a conflict of interest. Further, CESL and its Affiliated Companies may have multiple clients with conflicting interests in relation to any Order or Transaction. Without limiting the nature of such interests, examples include where CESL or its Affiliated Companies could be:

- providing services to other clients where such clients may have an interest in the investments, related investments, or assets underlying the investments which conflict with the Client's interests;
- dealing as agent for the Client in relation to Transactions involving investments, related investments or assets underlying the investments in which it is also acting as agent for other clients;
- dealing in the investment, a related investment or an asset underlying the investment for CESL's or an Affiliate Company's principal account, or another Client's own account;
- dealing in investments, related investments or assets underlying the investments as principal with Client, for example by trading as a principal, riskless principal or on a net basis or entering into a back to back transaction;
- dealing with or using the services of an intermediate broker or other agent in relation to Transactions involving the investments, related investments or assets underlying the investments where such broker or agent may be an affiliate of CESL;
- entering into or arranging Transactions from which CESL or an Affiliate Company receives a payment of any description from a third party;
- providing liquidity in an instrument that an employee (or family member) of CESL may have a personal investment or other interest;
- providing Investment Banking services such as financial advisory, lending, underwriting or otherwise participating in the issuance of a financial instrument, to a company whose financial instruments are the subject of the Client's Transaction.

Principal Trading

As a liquidity provider CESL may, in accordance with Applicable Law, enter into transactions with the Client in a principal capacity. In the circumstances a transaction is executed in a principal capacity for facilitation purposes, the facilitated order(s) may receive a different per share price from the price of CESL's hedging, liquidating or covering transactions.

Where acting in a principal capacity, upon receipt of a potential or firm request to enter into a transaction CESL may find it necessary to engage in pre-hedging or other hedging activities to facilitate the request or potential request. This may include entering into transactions prior to the receipt of a firm order by the Client. These hedging activities may impact the market price or liquidity of the instrument in question and may impact the final execution price.

CESL may on occasion receive more than one client order related to the same transaction at the same time. To ensure fair treatment of both clients, CESL will meet requests for comparable orders on a time priority basis.

Management and Disclosure of Conflicts of Interest

Any identified conflicts of interests will be managed by CESL to prevent that such conflicts cannot adversely affect the interests of any clients. Where the measures undertaken by CESL are unable to prevent adverse effect from arising in relation to any clients' interests, CESL will notify the relevant client of the nature or source of the conflict and the measures taken to mitigating the risks before CESL carries out any business on behalf of the relevant client. Such disclosure will be used as a last resort.

Policies and Procedures

CESL has adopted numerous internal policies and procedures, often set out in its internal procedures manuals, in order to manage the potential conflicts of interests that it has identified.

The policies and procedures have been designed to ensure that CESL has taken all reasonable steps to protect the interests of its customers. CESL provides training to its staff in respect of the CESL procedures for identifying, managing and escalating conflicts. All staff are made fully aware of their responsibilities under the relevant policies and procedures to ensure that customers are treated fairly.

These policies and procedures are subject to CESL's normal oversight processes to identify, manage, control, monitor and review conflicts of interest. The policies and procedures include:

(a) Conflicts policy including conflicts register

CESL maintains a conflict of interest policy which ensures that staff can identify, escalate and mitigate any conflicts of interest which are identified. In particular, internal procedures define and identify conflicts. This is complemented by a conflicts register, which is presented to the board on a regular basis for oversight and approval.

(b) Integrity and Standards of Conduct

CESL insists that, in its dealings with customers, its staff must use the highest standard of integrity in their actions at all times. CESL's monitoring and training programmes are designed to ensure that all relevant staff are familiar with and observe, inter alia, the FCA Principles for Businesses, the Statements of Principle and Code of Practice for Approved Persons.

(c) Customer Orders

In order to ensure as fair treatment as possible for customers, CESL's Order Execution Policy requires CESL to take all sufficient steps to achieve the best overall trading result for customers, to exercise consistent standards and operate the same processes across all markets in which it operates in relation to all clients and financial instruments. More information is included in the CESL's Order Execution Policy that can be obtained by contacting CESL's Compliance Officer.

Aggregation will only be permitted if it can be demonstrated that the aggregation will result in a favourable execution for all the clients concerned. More information is included in "Aggregation of Orders" in the Section 8 of the Agreement.

There may be occasions when customer orders may have a material effect on a relevant securities price and in order to ensure fair and orderly dealing staff are required to consider potential market impact prior to submitting such orders

In order to ensure a fair and orderly dealing environment within the market, CESL further ensures that its staff comply with the provisions of the Market Abuse Regulation EU 596/2014, as amended, as well as the relevant FCA Rules, which aim to prevent insider trading, the misuse of information and market manipulation.

(d) Trade Error Handling

CESL has in place procedures which require all trade errors to be reported and reviewed. Upon identifying any such trade error, steps are taken to rectify the error to ensure the client is treated fairly.

(e) Personal Account Dealing ("PAD") and Outside Business Activity

CESL has a policy on PAD and the rules are signed off as understood by all relevant employees regardless of their position within CESL.

The PAD procedures require pre-approval by the relevant business head and notification to CESL's Compliance Officer and all staff are required to annually attest to PAD holdings and annually report any outside business investment activity to the Compliance Officer. All staff are regularly reminded of the PAD rules.

(f) Inducements to Employees from Customers

CESL employees are not permitted to receive gifts, entertainment or any other inducement that may incentivise the favouring of one Client over another; or incentivise the employee to act in a way which may conflict with the interest of CESL, its Affiliates, the Client, or a third party. CESL maintains a policy which limits the value of gifts or entertainment an employee is permitted to receive, although the policy does not preclude an employee accepting reasonable corporate hospitality, provided it is not excessive and does not result in a conflict of interest for the employee.

Employees are not permitted to receive any other form of inducement whether monetary or non-monetary which might benefit (or have the perception of benefitting) one customer at the expense of another when conducting investment business. For example, where two customers give similar orders and one customer agrees to pay more commission, priority or better execution terms must not be granted to that customer's order when it conflicts with obligations owed to the other customer.

(g) Inducements to Customers from Employees

CESL employees are not allowed to place pressure upon customers to persuade their customer to trade through the firm to the extent that this might give rise to a conflict of interest between that customer and its own underlying customers.

(h) Group Companies

Customers are informed via the Agreement of the relationship with CESL including any Affiliate Company or any undertaking in the same group, for the execution of customers' orders or where the services of an Affiliate Company are recommended.

(i) Information Barriers

CESL prevents the flow of information where the interests of customers of one business function may conflict with the interests of customers of another business function. This includes using a separate network with no shared systems and customer data access between the two business functions. Further, CESL insists on strict customer confidentiality to ensure that information is disclosed only to those entitled to receive it.

(j) Remuneration Policy

All relevant staff that are open to a conflict of interest are paid a basic salary including Compliance. This salary is not dependent on company performance. A bonus structure does exist which is linked to company performance, team performance or the individual's performance but the structure does not contain performance targets or bonus arrangements that are tiered in a fashion that might incentivise an employee to take inappropriate risks on a client's behalf. The bonus structure is at the discretion of the senior management and notified only on payment.

CESL is subject to both SYSC 19A and SYSC 19F in respect of remuneration and applies such remuneration codes accordingly to ensure that conflicts of interest are mitigated.

(k) Disclosure

Where there are no other means of managing the conflict or where the measures in place do not, in the view of CESL sufficiently protect the interests of customers, the conflict of interest will be disclosed to customers to enable an informed decision to be made by the customer as to whether they wish to continue doing business with CESL in that particular situation.

(l) Declining to Act

Where CESL considers it is not able to manage the conflict of interest in any other way it may decline to act for a customer.

(m) Investment Recommendations

CESL Sales and Trading staff may from time to time communicate Investment Recommendations as defined by the Market Abuse Regulation EU 594/2014. Such opinions and judgements offered are those of the author or individual sender ("Author") acting as an agent of CESL and may differ from the opinions expressed by CESL or its Affiliates, including, including research publications. Views expressed by Sales and Trading personnel may not be objective or independent of the interests of the Authors or other CESL Sales and/or Trading desks, who are active participants in the markets, investments or strategies referred to in this communication. An investment recommendation is not a personal recommendation and does not take into account whether any product or transaction is suitable for any particular investor.

CESL and its Affiliated Companies maintain information barriers to restrict the information flows that may give rise to a conflict of interest. These information barriers prevent information that is held by CESL and its Affiliated Companies from conflicting with the best interest of a client.

This Appendix serves as notice, pursuant to FINRA Rule 4311(d), of the allocation of responsibilities between CESL and Cowen and Co, as Cowen and Co is a U.S. registered broker-dealer and FINRA member. The services provided by Cowen and Co and the allocation of responsibilities between CESL and Cowen and Co, are set out in the Clearing Agreement which is summarised below, provided however, that this is intended to be a general disclosure, not a definitive enumeration of the allocation each and every responsibility between Cowen and Co and CESL.

You have appointed CESL to act as your agent for the purpose of carrying out your directions with respect to your purchase or sale of securities in accordance with the Agreement. CESL has informed Cowen and Co that Cowen and Co is authorized to open or close brokerage accounts, place and withdraw orders and take such other steps as are reasonable to carry out your directions. Until receipt of your written notice to the contrary, Cowen and Co may accept instructions for your Account from CESL without inquiry or investigation by Cowen and Co including, without limitation, instructions with respect to the disbursement of funds and the transfer of securities. As between you and Cowen and Co, you shall be responsible for any action taken by Cowen and Co in your Account based upon instructions Cowen and Co received from either you or CESL. In the event that you maintain a delivery versus payment account, you agree to comply with applicable regulations by furnishing CESL with instructions for the delivery or receipt of securities promptly upon receipt of confirmation (or the relevant data as to execution), which shall be no later than (i) the close of business on the second business day after execution for purchases; and (ii) the close of business on the first business day after execution for sales.

Cowen and Co will provide the following services:

- Maintaining books and records, including stock records and journals, on CESL's behalf.
- Accepting the Client's Orders routed to Cowen and Co by CESL, if any, and executing the Client's Transactions upon instructions from CESL subject to Cowen and Co's right to reject Orders or Transactions.
- Cowen and Co will make commercially reasonable efforts to communicate corporate action information to Client but shall not be liable for any delays in the communication of corporate action information. Cowen and Co will handle CESL's requests for instructions relating any corporate actions involving investments or interests held by Client on the books of Cowen and Co. Cowen and Co will provide written advice to CESL of pending corporate actions at CESL's designated locations, and collect corporate action requests from CESL and then submit them to the soliciting party in accordance with the instructions received.
- Cowen and Co will be responsible for receiving and delivering funds and securities on behalf of CESL and Client in connection with Client Transactions. Unless otherwise agreed, all monies and securities for settlement shall be delivered directly to Cowen and Co's agents in the applicable market in which the Client's Transaction is executed. Following settlement, all monies and securities will be delivered to the Client's custodian. If Cowen and Co agrees to accept delivery of monies or securities on an exceptional basis, Cowen and Co will not be responsible for any monies or securities delivered until such monies or securities are actually received by Cowen and Co or deposited in a bank account maintained by Cowen and Co.
- Determining and/or charging a commission and any other charge or expense that CESL instructs Cowen and Co to charge in respect of each Transaction. Cowen and Co may charge additional fees and charges in accordance with instructions from CESL.
- Cowen and Co will maintain custody of funds and securities on behalf of CESL and Client. Other than on an exceptional basis, all Transactions will be settled exclusively on a "delivery versus payment" or "receipt versus payment" basis. Cowen and Co will not be responsible for any monies or investments delivered by the Client to CESL until such monies or investments are actually received by Cowen and Co or deposited in bank accounts maintained by Cowen and Co.
- Preparing and transmitting confirmations of Transactions to Client on behalf of CESL as required to be provided under the Applicable Law and in accordance with any instructions received from CESL.
- Notwithstanding the foregoing, Cowen and Co have, at all times, the right to contact the Client directly regarding its information requirements. Cowen and Co has, at all times, the right exercisable in its sole discretion, or refuse to accept Orders or execute or clear Transactions for the Client's Accounts or to refuse to conduct business with the Client, which it may exercise where, for example and without limitation, it has not received the necessary information from the Client.

CESL will be responsible for the following:

- Opening, approving, servicing, and monitoring of the Client's account, including obtaining and verifying the Client's new account information.
- Obtaining information from the Client and monitoring the conduct of the Client's account to ensure that all Transactions and transfers are in compliance with all applicable laws, rules, and regulations. Such responsibility includes, without limitation: (i) knowing all of Client's persons having authority to act with respect to its Account and those persons holding power of attorney in relation to the Client's Account, (ii) determining suitability and legality of all Transactions in the Client's account, and (iii) determining the appropriateness of the frequency of trading in the Client's Account.
- Collecting customer information and completing and submitting all customer account opening documentation required by CESL and Cowen and Co, to the extent requested by Cowen and Co.
- Reviewing your Account and all Orders and Transactions received or executed in that Account.
- Transmitting instructions concerning Client's Accounts, Orders and Transactions to Cowen and Co.
- Ensuring that securities sold by you may be transferred without restriction or that you have complied with transfer restrictions.

- The conduct of your Account and ensuring that all the Orders received from Client and all Transactions executed on behalf of Client are in compliance with all applicable laws, rules and regulations. Such responsibility includes, without limitation:
 - (i) selecting, investigating, training and supervising all personnel who open, approve or authorize Transactions in your Account;
 - (ii) establishing written policies and procedures for the conduct of your Account and maintaining compliance and supervisory personnel adequate to implement such policies and procedures; and (iii) determining the suitability and legality of all transactions in your account.
- Responding to any inquiries or resolving any complaints you may have concerning your Account. If any complaint concerns Cowen and Co's performance of its functions, CESL will be responsible for promptly notifying Cowen and Co in writing about such complaint.

CESL or Cowen and Co will notify the Client in the event the Clearing Agreement is terminated. Any termination of the Clearing Agreement will not affect any obligations that the Client may have to CESL or Cowen and Co. Such obligations may include the obligations to pay for securities purchased for the Client's Accounts, deliver securities disposed of for the Client's Accounts, or to meet a margin call on the Client's Accounts. Since the Client is not a party to the Clearing Agreement and has not been given any rights to enforce any of its provisions, the Client will not be able to bring an action against Cowen and Co for breach of any of Cowen and Co's obligations to CESL under the Clearing Agreement.
